

Cookies Policy

Cookies are small text files sent to and stored on your computer, smartphone or any devices when accessing websites. They recognize you when you revisit the website and remember certain information about you for a certain period of time, during which they will be used by the website to run ads, widgets or load personalized elements. We may use cookies to assess and improve the performance of the website and its products and services offered to its clients, and we do not have the intention nor the ability to collect your personal information or financial information through Cookies. We will occasionally update this Cookies Policy to reflect changes we have made in our services.

Clients may be able to refuse to have cookies stored on their device they may be able to change the setting of their browser to refuse all cookies, and/or have their device to notify them each time a cookie is sent to their device. By controlling their cookies in this way may impair the quality of service provided by the Company to its clients and therefore, it is recommended for clients to allow cookies on their device to ensure the best possible experience and quality services provided by the Company.

You can control how cookies are placed on your device from within your own browser. You can also delete existing cookies from your browser. However, refusing and/or deleting cookies may mean some sections of our site will not work properly.
